Matthew Chapter 5 Summary

The LORD said His disciples should count it joyful when they are reviled for His sake. Moments of encouragement were also addressed; such they are the light of the world and the salt of the earth. They and we today are to shine our light, and flavor our salt so men can see and glorify our Father in Heaven.

5:5 "Blessed are the meek, for they will inherit the earth. The word "meek" is generally misunderstood to refer to a person who is weak, but in fact the opposite is true. There can only be meekness where there is strength. Jesus called himself "meek and lowly" (Matt. 11:29) and yet he spoke with authority and demonstrated his power.

Preached at Enfield, Connecticut on July 8, 1741, this is perhaps the greatest sermon ever preached in America—and is certainly among the most well known. Owing to its forthright dealing with God's wrath and His intense hatred of sin and the sinner, it is also one of the most controversial. Indeed, for more than three-quarters of the sermon Edwards lays down a relentless stream of the most vivid and horrifying descriptions of the danger facing unregenerate men. While it is difficult to read such graphic language, there is abundant hope in the sermon's conclusion. Edwards puts it this way, "And now you have an extraordinary opportunity, a day wherein Christ has thrown the door of mercy wide open and stands calling and crying with a loud voice to poor sinners." While those who would rather ignore God's justice in favor of His mercy condemn Edwards and his sermon, those who were present and

According to the diary of Reverend Stephen Williams who attended the sermon, “Before the sermon was done there was a great moaning and crying through the whole House, ‘what shall I do to be saved; oh, I am going to hell, etc.’” The diary goes on to indicate that Edwards had to interrupt his sermon and come down to minister to those who were under such awful conviction. And so, in spite of what the scoffers might think or say, “the amazing and astonishing power of God” was manifested among the people that
